1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-27, 44-46, and 63, drawn to a sensor intended to be replaced and disposed of with a relationship to an optical apparatus for using the sensor for gas analysis, classified in class 356, subclass 437.
 - II. Claims 28-39, drawn to a sensor element with a "use limitation means", classified in class 340, subclass 540.
 - III. Claims 40-43, drawn to a sensor element with a sealing means sealing an entry port prior to use, classified in class 422, subclass 58.
 - IV. Claims 47-50, drawn to a sensor and housing containing a "sample conditioning unit", such as a desiccant, classified in class 422, subclass 56
 - V. Claims 51-52, drawn to a sensor in a housing with means to limit the diffusion of the sample, classified in class 356, subclass 440.
 - VI. Claims 53-59, drawn to a combination of a sensor and calibration information, classified in class 250, subclass 252.1.
 - VII. Claims 60-62, drawn to a sensor element packaged with a "storage compound", such as a desiccant, classified in class 422, subclass 58.
 - VIII. Claims 64-66, drawn to a sensor with a housing having means to protect a transparent window on a housing, classified in class 359, subclass 507.
2. The inventions are distinct each from the other because of the following reasons:

The Inventions of the various groups are generally related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, each of the subcombinations have there own separate utility and none required the others for their own utility. For example, the combination of group I does not require the “use limitation means” of group II, which does not require for its utility the sealing means of group III, the “sample conditioning means” of group IV, the diffusion limiting means of group V, the inclusion of calibration information as in group VIII, the “storage compound” of group VII, nor the window protection means of group VIII. Similarly for groups II through VIII; the system of group I does not require the details of any of these groups, and none of these groups require the details o the others for there operation or utility.

3. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, and because this divergent subject matter would be expected to require separate consideration and treatment during examination, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even if the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.
